Gast's Bonfire Material for Sale.

PUEBLO, February 3.—The Chieftain of to-morrow morning will contain the following advertisement:

"FOR SALE. One thousand tons of bonfire material, for which there is no further use.

"C. E. GAST,

"Late Solicitor for a Line to Leadville."

Platte Mining Excitement.

DENVER, February 3.—There is great excitement in Denver over a new discovery of gold near the mouth of the canon of the Platte river, a mile from the South Park railway, and only twenty miles west of Denver. A vein of mineral was struck in the Dolly Varden mine at the depth of twenty feet on last Friday, and a specimen was brought to Denver, and an assay was obtained on Saturday. The assay gives the value of the ore at $21,199 per ton, $20,176 of it being gold. A publication of these facts was made in one of the papers on Sunday morning, and before night, a hundred people were on the spot. Up to the present date, five hundred people have visited the place, and two hundred locations have been made.

A New Industry.

DENVER, February 3. At a meeting of the Saltiel Mica and Porcelain company held here to-night, Dr. John Elsner was elected president, J. P. Jones, of the Pacific Express, vice president and E. H. Saltiel, general superintendent. The company are making preparations to supply the need of the railroad companies, stove manufacturers and others in this direction and the interest bids fair to become one of the leading industries of the state.

GENERAL NEWS.

Washington News.

STARTLING NEWS FROM OURAY VIA WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, February 3.—Yesterday, Senator Teller, Governor Pitkin, and State Senator Peck, of Colorado, called upon Secretary Sherman and the secretary of war, and laid before them a petition from the citizens of Ouray, and other towns in Colorado, asking for military protection from the Indians.

The signers of this petition represent about five hundred families, who are in a very embarrassing and dangerous situation. Hostile Ute Indians are encamped between them and civilization, and will not permit the passage of any wagons containing supplies. Food in these towns is becoming very scarce, and, unless relief and protection is at once sent, they either will perish from hunger, or, if they attempt to pass the hostile camps, they are in danger of their lives. While these white people are suffering from the want of food, they complain that the Indians are being well fed by the government, and that, not satisfied with this, they seize and appropriate everything in the way of food sent to the settlements. This petition, which sets forth at length and in detail this wretched condition of affairs, was sent to Governor Pitkin at Denver, and forwarded to him. Secretary Ramsey and General Sherman both expressed great anxiety to do something for the aid of these people, but they could not send any soldiers there, as it would be considered as a violation of the in. statu quo understanding which Secretary Schurz has with the Indians. General Sherman said that if he could have his way, troops should go right in there, but he was held back, and the only person who could give relief was the president. The same gentleman, with the rest of the Colorado delegation, have an appointment with the president, and will make an appeal to him.

LATER. The Colorado delegation in congress and Governor Pitkin called on the president, and represented the defenseless condition of the frontier settlements of Colorado. The president, in reply, gave assurance that steps will be taken to protect them promptly in case that an emergency arises, and he is to confer with the secretary of the interior and General Sherman.

CAPTAIN EADS' PLAN FOR CROSSING THE ISTHMUS.

The Chicago Inter Ocean's Washington special says that Captain Eads arrived there from Europe, where he has been for several months, studying the construction of the Suez canal, and other engineering features, with a view of perfecting a plan for a ship canal across the Isthmus. He has asked for a hearing before the house committee on the inter oceanic canal in behalf of his scheme, which is to construct a railway or tramway across capable of lifting ocean ships over.

LOCKWOOD FOR COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

A strong feeling exists in favor of the appointment of Major Jo. W. Lockwood, chief clerk of the Indian bureau, as commissioner of Indian affairs. Major Lockwood is one of the ablest officers in the department, fully familiar with all the details of the Indian office, and especially fitted to transact the business. He possesses the closest confidence of the president and Secretary Schurz.

SUCCESS OF PARNELL'S MISSION.

A large number of unemployed people to day made a demonstration before the mayor's office, demanding work or bread, accompanying their demand with a threat to sack a baker's shop.

WARNER SILVER BILL.

Bayard, from the finance committee, reported adversely to the Warner silver bill. Beck said the minority had a report to make.

REDUCING THE DEBT.

The secretary of the treasury has decided to purchase $11,000,000 of bonds for the sinking fund. In the usual manner bids will be opened on the 11th No limit is fixed as to the price.

Heavy Storm Near New York.

LONG BRANCH, February 3. The most severe and destructive storm that ever visited this coast prevailed to day. The wind blew with tremendous fury, carrying away summer houses, pavilions, bath houses and portions of piazzas, seats and roofs of nearly all the hotels on the shore. At Seabright, a schooner a mile north, and another a half a mile south of this place were wrecked. The iron pier is injured to some extent.

NEW YORK, February 3. The high tide and tremendous gale caused serious damage at Coney Island. The water broke through between the pavilion and the hotel Brighton, tearing up the planking and flooding the background. Englemons wooden pier in front of the Ocean house, Brighton beach, was swept away. The beach is strewn with floating timber. It is impossible to get to Manhattan, but as viewed from Brighton, the waves were flying over the road, but the hotel was uninjured. The old band stand at Brighton is probably swept away ere this. At West Brighton all the bathing houses and portable structures are floating around on the beach. The waves reached the floor of the iron pier and some structures thereon were carried away. The islanders say they have never witnessed so severe a storm. The danger to hotels and railroads was made mede manifest by the presence at the beach of many railroad men. A man whose name is unknown, went to the Brighton pier this morning and was carried away with a portion of the structure.

NEW YORK, February 3.—There was the severest snow storm of the season last night. Four inches on a level. A heavy wind caused deep drifts, and boats even were impeded by the drift and wind, and the river craft fared badly. On the sound last night, it was wild, but no disasters are reported. The snow has now turned to rain and slush.

MOUSCHAN, N. J. Feb, 3.—The roof of the Pennsylvania railway depot was blown away to night with the gale together with the wind wheel of the company's reservoir. The loss exceeds five thousand dollars.

HALIFAX, Feb. 3. The heaviest storm of the season has been raging all the afternoon and continues this evening.

ATLONTIEVILLE, N. J. Feb. 3.—The captain of the brig Augustine, which came ashore here to-day, shot himself when he saw the vessel must be wrecked. The crew was saved with difficulty.

BOSTON, Feb. 3 Despatches from various quarters along the coast represent the storm as terrible. Much damage has been done to shipping and fears are entertained for the safety of fishing fleets.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. During the storm this afternoon, Wm. Murphy, a brakeman on the Hudson River railway was blown from the train and killed.

Grant and Earthquakes.

HAVANA, Feb. 3. General Grant and party visited Vento water works near Havana yesterday. To-night a great tea party followed by a ball, was given in the hall in honor of the visitors. The principal families in the city and all official persons were invited. The vice governor general issued invitations in the name of Captain General Blanca. On Thursday the party will go to Matanza and visit some plantations in that vicinity.

On the first instant another earthquake occurred at Condelaria. The oscillations were felt, the direction being east, south and to west north west. A slight tremor of the earth was felt some time after.

Heavy Fire in Kansas.

HAYES CITY, KAN., February 3.—A fire at Wa Keeny last night destroyed the building in which the United States land office was located, and everything south on the east side of the street to Henry & Kilrs' store. The track books belonging to the United States land office were all saved. The loss is variously estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000. The fire is supposed to be an incendiary one.

Pennsylvania Republican Convention.

HARRISBURG, February 3.—The republican convention to-morrow will adopt resolutions declaring the prosperity and specie resumption due to the financial policy of the government, opposing any finance or tariff tinkering, denouncing the election frauds and intimidation.

HARRISBURG, February 3.—A caucus of the Blaine delegates to-night at which there were 105 votes cast in his interest. Afterwards the caucus of all the delegates was held and it was decided by a vote of 123 to 110 that the convention to-morrow should select delegates to the national convention.

CHICAGO, February 3.—The Times Pennsylvania special indicates that the convention to-morrow will be pretty sure to instruct the delegation to Chicago to vote as a unit for Grant; Blaine second choice.

Railroad Schemes.

CHICAGO, February 3.—George M. Pullman, president of the Palace Car company, says, regarding the rumors that there is to be a future amalgamation of the Pullman and Wagner sleeping car interests, that such a plan has been under discussion between Vanderbilt and others interested, with a view to mutually benefiting the proprietors and the public, but no decisive action has yet been taken.

The Times says of the Pullman company that it has contracted to equip the railroad from St. Louis to Denver and Ogden with hotel cars. There will be ten of these, the finest ever constructed heretofore. The hotel cars have not been run upon the roads forming the route from St. Louis to Ogden, via Kansas City and Denver. By this arrangement, travelers en route from New York to the Pacific coast can dine in hotel cars from the starting point to Ogden with but one transfer.

Burning of a Poor House.

MILWAUKEE, February 3.—The Milwaukee county hospital, located on the county farm in the town of Wantasa, was burned this morning. On account of the books being burned the exact number of the inmates is not known, but was supposed to be over sixty. Thirty were carried out, and the others made their own escape. Two bodies were recovered, one Christian Nelson, the other, not known. The walls partially fell in, and it is thought that several bodies are among the ruins. The loss is $25,000. The origin is supposed to be a defective flue.

Who Are the Uncompahgres.

CHICAGO, February 3.—A dispatch from Fort Buford, Dakota Territory, says that on the 28th of January, some Uncompahgre Indians raided a Grosventre Indian camp, and captured a herd of ponies. On the next day, a war party of the Grosventres, after raiding forty mules, attacked the marauders, and joined in a battle which was very fierce and bloody, fifteen men being killed, and the stock recaptured. The Grosventre braves are much excited, and a general uprising along the Yellowstone river is feared early in the spring.

Of Course.

WILMINGTON, February 3. There have been four convictions for illegal voting in this city at the last election. All are democrats.

Endorsing Pinchback.

NEW ORLEANS, February 3. A petition signed by a number of the prominent merchants was forwarded to the president, endorsing Governor Pinchback for naval official of this port. The colored men's union endorse Governor Pinchback, and a telegram recently sent by the president and secretary was sent wholly without the knowledge of the association.

Heavy Storm.

DEADWOOD, February 3. Detectives S. S. Sewell and Boone May, after capturing Lee Grimes, a notorious desperado, and one of Doc Middleton's gang, shot and instantly killed him last night while he was trying to escape. A heavy snow storm is raging throughout the hills.

Mill Burned.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Feb. 3. Southworth paper mill, west Springfield, the oldest mill in the state was burned to night. The insurance was seventy thousand dollars.

A Wicked Rumor.

SCRANTON, PA., February 3. It is reported here that Samuel J. Tilden will be married to Miss Fanny Rauck of Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, this week.

LATER.

NEW YORK, February 3.—Tilden denies the report of his intended marriage. He does not even know the lady mentioned.

Indian Against Indian.

DEADWOOD, February 3.—About a week ago the news reached here of a band of about fifty lodges of Sioux, who escaped from Spotted Tail, and the Pine Ridge agency, coming into the camp of the Grosventres Indians, on the Missouri river, and desired to have a share of their meat. The Times this morning contains a special from Buford dated the 1st, to the effect that seeing the determination of the Grosventres chief in refusing to share the fruits of their hunt, the Sioux at daylight next morning returned and attacked the Grosventres camp, running off fifteen ponies. They at once gave chase and before midnight overtook them at Big Forks, east of the Yellowstone river. A lively fight ensued, the Grosventres securing their stolen ponies and routing the Sioux, but losing Lone Bull and Old Beaver killed, and Skunk and Long Tail wounded. The Sioux loss is not known.

Horrible Suicide.

NEWARK, N. J. Feb. 3.—Charles Decker, proprietor of a hardware store last night took a large hollow block of iron and converted it into a cannon, filling it with powder and lead. He then placed it under his chin and set fire to the powder. The room in which the tragedy occurred presented a most sickening sight.

New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, February 3.—It is announced that the treasury department will buy eleven million dollars' worth of bonds for the sinking fund. This had an effect on share speculators. The strength in Erie shares and bonds was due to the reports that the contract with the New York Central for a portion of the New England business, and also for some of the traffic of the Lake Shore, Michigan Central, and Canada Southern roads at Buffalo, had been signed. Arrangements are in progress with a view to funding the indebtedness to the Panama railway company of the Pacific Mail Steamship company. The amount has been largely reduced during the past year, and the directors of the latter company are willing to advance money enough to pay off the debt, and fund the amount. The agents of the company are busily canvassing among the principal shippers for time contracts on freight. It is reported that freight rates on petroleum will be advanced by all the trunk lines at an early day.

The following resolution was adopted by the stock exchange to-day:

Resolved—That the law committee of the stock exchange be authorized and required to take cognizance of any complaints made by any one against any person or firm who represent themselves as doing their business through or at the New York stock exchange, and who it is alleged are doing a fraudulent business, to investigate fully and with the utmost care all the cases that may be placed before them, and if they are satisfied that the parties complained of are carrying on a fraudulent business, they should take all the legal and proper measures to bring the guilty parties to justice and defeat their purposes.

Cause of the Explosion.

LONDON, February 3. The experimental test of the question as to the cause of the explosion of a 38 ton Parrot gun on board the British Ironclad Thunderer, on the sea of the Marmora, January 2, 1879, by which several officers and seamen were killed, was made to-day by Prof. Butts, in Government Marshes adjoining the Royal Arsenal at the Woolwich. The theory was the disaster resulted from the double loading of the gun through carelessness, and the theory was to-day substantiated.

Parnell's Statements Shown to be False.

DUBLIN, February 3. The Mansion House Relief Committee met to day, Lord Mayor Grey presiding. It was announced 41,115 pounds sterling had been received by the committee to date and 15,400 pounds distributed. Replies to inquiries had been received from 30 bishops, including three Catholic archbishops, and one Protestant archbishop, refuting Parnell's charges of discriminating against the rent defaulters and expressing entire confidence in the committee.

Home Rule Meeting.

DUBLIN, February 3.—At the meeting of the home rule league to day, William Shaw disclaimed any pretensions to be considered the leader of the Irish people. At a meeting of the National Land League to day, it was resolved that Michael Davett should be deputed to wait upon the editors of the French and other continental newspapers to enlist their support in efforts for the relief of distress in Ireland.

E. P. STEPHENSON,
Manager.

Rose Mecker has written the Chieftain a letter of thanks for making public her sister's misfortune.

The German element is for Sherman. This element will decide which way New York, Ohio and Indiana will go.

The Register-Call is sensible enough to see that Blaine is the most popular man in this state for the presidential nomination.

Judge Belford now wishes he had offered that resolution in favor of Blaine instead of Grant. He didn't strike a popular current that time.

The Boston Transcript thinks "Senator Edmunds would be a Presidential candidate in whom every section of the country might take pride."

Mr. Woodbury has the republican nomination for governor in his breeches pocket.—Denver News.

The News has a republican opinion this time.

The story of the compromise between the A., T. & S. F. and D. & R. G. in our dispatches of yesterday is said to be substantially true. We hope in a few days to publish a more detailed account.

The Leadville Democrat shows great political sagacity in the following:

"All the stalwart republican leaders in Colorado are Blaine men. Judge Belford's chances for a renomination are growing as poor as Grant's prospects for a third term."

It has been suggested to us that Governor Pitkin's generosity in advising that the Utes be settled in severalty on land in Utah has only been equalled by Artemus Ward's willingness to sacrifice his wife's relations in the late war.

The democrats in congress can now say but little about nepotism. Senators Eaton, Morgan, Voorhees, Vance, Johnson and others all have one or more sons occupying clerkships on congressional committees.

It is said that Governor Pitkin dined with Secretary Schurz at Senator Hill's. A month ago he would hold no communication with him because he held that the crushing reply to his "bloody" despatch was an insult. We wonder how Schurz satisfied his wounded honor.

A few weeks ago the papers were calling for the removal of Hayt. Now that Hayt is removed these same papers are scolding Schurz for doing so. His motives are misconstrued and aspersed. If the statement is true that Schurz was in collusion with Hayt in corruption, the action he has taken would have been very unwise for it enables Hayt to pull him down with him if he chooses.

The Georgetown Miner contains this statement, which is refreshing because it is true. "There never was a time when the party organs appeared to be as independent in expression as at present in Colorado. Each one has different ideas from its neighbor, and while all are harnessed in the same team, every individual member of the team kicks at its mate and there doesn't appear to be any driver. These remarks apply with greater force to the republican journals than those of democratic persuasion, for the reason that there are more of them."

A very pleasant incident is related of General Grant at Jacksonville, Florida. As he entered the hotel he was followed by a crowd of negroes. The host undertook to drive them out, when Grant said, "Let them alone. Where I am they can come." This has inspired Fred Douglas to sing the following pæan: "No words more significant and impressive have dropped from the lips of General Grant since he uttered those famous words: 'Let us have peace.' They are both worthy of the great head and heart of the man who uttered them, and remind one of the saying of Jesus, when little children were forbidden to come unto him. In the case of Jacksonville the poor liberated bondmen pressed upon the general, and the hotel keeper, little knowing the great heart of his guest, thought to do him a kindness by keeping the unfortunate class from him. But he refused to be protected, and said: 'Wherever I am they can come.' Millions will lift their dejected heads at the words."

The people of Colorado carry their selfishness a little too far when they insist that Utah shall suffer all the disadvantages we suffer on account of the presence of the Indians in this state. If Kansas and Nebraska had insisted on the removal of all their Indians to the territory of Colorado after they became states, there might at least be a precedent to justify Governor Pitkin's claim that none of the Utes should be allowed even to hold land in severalty in this state. But Kansas and other states did not do this. All western states have absorbed to a large extent their Indian population, and it may be unwise to object too strongly to this in this state. We must not try to accomplish too much or we may lose all. The first and important thing to be accomplished is the obliteration of the reservation. We can't in justice ask for more than this. If we do we shall ask for more than any other state has asked for, besides doing a great injustice to a neighboring territory.

By notice in another column it will be seen that city warrants issued after February 2, 1880, will be cashed at par at the El Paso county bank. This should be a source of congratulation to all our taxpayers. Heretofore every man selling the city any goods or doing any work for the city has understood he would be paid in script worth only from 80 to 90 cents on a dollar. This has necessarily prevented the council from running the city on as economical a basis as it might wish. These warrants draw 10 per cent. interest and will prove a popular investment. The bonds issued by the city are now worth more than par. These two things show that our finances are getting on a sound basis, and that our securities inspire confidence. The arrangement for redeeming the warrants at par was made by Mayor Curr on his personal responsibility. As a shrewd and careful business man he has seen that there is no reason for their remaining at a discount, and so he determined to advance them to par. In taking this action Mayor Curr has shown a very zealous regard for the city's welfare which is eminently praiseworthy.

The Colorado Springs GAZETTE has discovered what no other journal of Colorado has yet learned—that Sherman stands a chance for the Chicago nomination. The GAZETTE may be right, but in all probability will get left as usual.—Leadville Herald.

Possibly the Herald has learned that Sherman has a chance for the Chicago nomination since the election of delegates at large in North Carolina. It may be surprised at this fact as well as Grant politicians in Washington, but still the fact ought to open its eyes. The Herald however must not confound individual preferences with political foresight. We have not supported Sherman because we had a faint hope even that a delegation would go to Chicago from this state pledged to support him, or because we felt in any way sure that he would receive the nomination at Chicago. We have supported him simply because among the prominent names mentioned for the candidacy we thought his the most available, and that his election would contribute most to the prosperity and welfare of the country. A newspaper whose opinion is worth anything don't always float in the tide of popular opinion. Our opinion for weeks has been that Blain would get Colorado's delegation. But we know that he will not have near the strength in close states that Sherman will, and hence we don't float with the current, but prefer to resist it. We prefer to attempt to educate public opinion rather than reflect it; to lead rather than follow.

The French Commune.

The French republic's second ordeal namely, the withstanding the faults of its friends—is now assuming rather threatening proportions, and interested alarmists have been so successful in spreading the fearful rumors, that the "coming storm in Paris" begins to be spoken of by the Royalist and Imperialist papers, both in France and Germany, as a thing from which escape is scarcely to be hoped for. This "coming storm" is, for the present nothing more than an empty phrase; but it would be vain and even foolish to shut one's eyes to the fact that distrust and discontent are growing, and that the government seems to be intent on doing their best to increase instead of allaying the angry displeasure of the public. This is the more provoking as M. Grevy's first cabinet had everything smooth before them, and are wilfully spoiling the most splendid situation a cabinet could have dreamed of.

The communist movement of 1871 was an exceedingly complex one. Two main feelings however were easily discernible in it: on the one side a feeling of uncontrollable rage against the government which had brought the insane German war upon us, and against the now universally acknowledged incapacity of the imperial military chieftains; and on the other a most intense feeling of attachment and devotion to the municipal institutions, on the strengthening and free development of which the people of France at large, and most of the people at Paris, relied to raise France again from the abyss of grief and shame into which she had fallen. Add to these the repeated and persistent provocations of the monarchist assembly, which, first at Bordeaux and soon after at Versailles, openly mocked at restoring a monarchy, and at taking from Paris not only her glory as the French capital but all her municipal liberties, and you will without the shade of a doubt come with me to the conclusion that the day when the Versaillese generals would ask the Parisians to give up their arms would infallibly be the first day of a tremendous battle. Everybody knew this would happen, and everybody on the Versailles side as well as on the Paris side madly rushed into the fratricidal civil war. After a six week's struggle, the victory remained with the Versaillese; and the way they achieved their victory can be summed up in a very few words: indiscriminate shooting and wholesale massacre! When the massacre was put an end to, another and scarcely less terrible kind of retribution began, namely, the trial of communist prisoners by the very men who had fought them, and who were still hot from the fray. Giving to this kind of trial the name of justice seems to me to be rather a perversion of the meaning of words. Never was so cruel or so bloody a page written in the history of the French nation, and I am not surprised that the great majority of the French people are haunted with an impatient desire to throw the thickest of veils over the remembrance of those unfortunate and to say the truth, shameful days. I particularly and fully realize the wish of the governing classes to see the French workmen forget the civil war and the devilish hatred with which it was repressed. But this is not quite so easy as our well-to-do fellow-citizens pretend. Wives who lost their husbands, mothers who lost their sons, children who pined away their miserable life for want of the loving bread-winner who for nine long years was heard of only at long intervals from new Caledonia, these cannot, even if they would, forget the sufferings they have gone through, and the hard, relentless cruelty they have experienced at the hands of those professing to be their betters. One thing, and one only, could have to a certain extent assuaged the popular feelings; it was a full, a generous amnesty. Instead of which we could get from the present cabinet and chambers only a grudgingly partielle (partial) and partiale (biased) amnesty.

The mistake of the present government is to believe that there are in the lower ranks of the French people a large number of men, or families, who wish to revive something like the horrible situation of which the outcome was the Commune. This is a complete mistake, an error the more dangerous as it can be acted upon by the enemies of the Republic not the communists, but the Bonapartists, Legitimists, Orleanists, and all the clericals.

History teaches us that when their blood is up, the French working classes are the most dangerous. It is war, real war, which they mean then, not boxing or fisticuffing. But it requires a long series of oppressions to bring them up to that terrible state, and in their usual mood they are the most easily governed people on the earth. The guiltier are the governments not to understand this good disposition, and avail themselves of it to carry out improvements by ever so slow processes but never failing installments of reform. A. Talandier on "The Political Situation in France," in International Review for February, 1880.

The "sixth column man" of the New York Times is apprehensive of direful meteorological results on the opening of the Panama canal. "As we all know," he says, "the weather in use on this side of the Rocky Mountains comes from one of the three great meteorological manufactories. These are situated respectively in the Atlantic Ocean, the lake region, and Manitoba. Between the Atlantic and the lake weather there is not much to choose, but Manitoba has won an unenviable notoriety for turning out weather of an extremely bad quality. The Pacific weather never reaches this side of the great mountain chain that extends from Behring Straits to Patagonia. The mountains arrest all vagrant Pacific winds, confiscate their moisture, and turn them back again. We cannot be too glad that this is done, for bad as Manitoba weather is, we cannot for a moment compare it with the atrocious weather made in the heathenish seas of China and Japan, and rendered still more fierce and dangerous by a long journey across the Pacific. Though there is no gap in the mountain barriers by which the Pacific weather can reach us, it may be suggested that by doubling Cape Horn the Pacific weather could reach the Atlantic and come north to devastate our eastern coast. Though theoretically this is possible, practically it is never done. Quantities of the most reckless and ferocious Pacific weather are constantly arriving at Cape Horn, with the apparent intention of passing through the Straits of Magellan, but that locality is such a perfect paradise for depraved weather that it never cares to leave it. The amount of weather which has thus gradually collected at the Cape is enormous; but no weather after once reaching that infamous locality, has ever shown the slightest disposition to leave it. But there will be a very different state of things when once M. De Lesseps shall have cut a wide, straight channel through the Central American mountains. Through this channel the Pacific weather will rush with a force which nothing can withstand. The tidal gates will be utterly useless as a defense against it. The pauper typhoons of China, and the pagan cyclones of Japan, rushing through the canal, will triumphantly enter the Atlantic, and devastate our coasts to an extent of which those who are familiar only with the Christian weather of the Atlantic and the lakes, or even the semi-barbarous weather of Manitoba, can form no conception. * * * It is all very well to talk about the interests of commerce, the advisability of shortening the route between Europe and China, and the necessity of selling canal-shares. These are matters which should not for a moment be weighed against the certainty of admitting the swarming weather of the Pacific into the Gulf of Mexico."

Alsace-Lorraine and the Conquerors.

The conquerors had fixed a date by which every inhabitant of Alsace-Lorraine was to determine whether he would be Frenchman or German. To adopt either resolution meant to lift up a heavy burden. To be a Frenchman, a man must leave his home; he must go, that is, from Alsace-Lorraine, from the new Reichsland, across the border into France. To be a German, he must not only accept the new rulers and the new order of things, the German language and German justice; he must serve as a German soldier, and he must soon. By Sept. 30th the choice must be made. By Oct. 6th the drum must sound, and the new recruits must present themselves before the new colors. It was a necessary, perhaps, but it was a cruel law. Did not every one think in those days that a new war between Germany and France might break out, before the grass had grown thick over the graves of those who had fallen at Sedan? Was Alsace not still French in her sympathies? Had her sons not snatched up the sword as the Marseillaise had sounded in 1870? Nay, were there not, still in the army of the new Republic hundreds of men whose homes and kindred were in Alsace-Lorraine? And how were men to forego the ties of memory and blood to swear fealty to a banner which, probably enough, might soon flaunt defiance to their own? It was a horrible decision to have to make. There is a story well authenticated and no doubt typical of a hundred others, of a man who protested in agony against two of his sons becoming German soldiers. "I have two sons," he said, "in the French army; are my children to fight with one another?" And thus, at all sacrifices, men determined to leave their birthplaces, to go forth from the metamorphosed Alsace to soil that was France, though it was strange. Never did the feeling of nationality show itself more curiously than in that wonderful exodus of the year 1872. Fifty thousand persons, taking the very lowest figures, crossed the boundaries, with such of their goods as they could carry with them. Charity came to their aid, from all parts of Europe, from Mexico, and elsewhere in America, subscriptions poured in; New York alone sent 40,000 francs; but the misery was horrible nevertheless. Every train was crowded, the highways were blocked with wagons, carts, horses and wayfarers; there were men in every condition in life; for many had hesitated till the fatal 30th came, and the rigorous Prussian executive allowed them to hesitate no longer. No matter then, if a man were old and young, strong and weak. One man fell down on the boundary, just reaching French soil to die upon it. There had been some ambiguity as to the clause which dealt with the nationality of minors. To interpret the ambiguity rested, of course with the conquerors, and as was, indeed, to be expected, they interpreted it to imply the severest conditions. Minors were to be Germans, and liable to military service, unless their parents had crossed the borders to France. The Late Leonard Montfiore, in the Nineteenth Century.

An Old Stage Driver's Reminiscences.

The Boston Journal gives some reminiscences of an old New England stage driver, from which we take the following: "Yes, I've carried people whose wives, husbands, daughters or sons were sick nigh unto death, and they fussing and fretting because the cattle didn't get over the road faster, and blaming me because there were so many hills to climb. I remember one man who had a wife sick at a house on the road, and he heard just afore I started from Boston that she was dying. We had a light cargo that trip, and the man kept urging me to go faster, he was so anxious. I was driving as fast as I dared to send the cattle, 'cause it was a pretty hot day, and told him so. He asked me how much my horses were worth. I said about seventy dollars apiece. Horses were cheap in those days. He just pulled his wallet right out and counted out two hundred and eighty dollars, handed it to me, and said he wanted to buy them, but that he must drive. Well, as I could get as good ones for the money, and seeing how worked up he was, I just put the money in my pocket and handed the lines to him, telling him to go ahead if he wanted to; and didn't he go? He just kept the long whip lash tickling the flanks of the leaders, all the time we was on level ground, and the only breathers they got was when they climbed a hill. We finally reached the house his wife was stopping at about three hours ahead of time; he found her alive, and rushing from the house, made me a present of the team. I refused them but he insisted, and so, as the cattle were all right the next day, not hurt at all, I concluded to let the company keep the horses and I the money.

"I was once carrying a young couple girl and her sweetheart to Haverhill. I had taken them up at different places on the road. Pretty soon the young fellow was urging me to drive faster, and I see that he and the girl were kinder nervous like, and it wasn't until the girl herself coaxed me, with tears in her eyes, that I began to drive faster. Then they told me they were running away to get married, and as soon as the girl was missed her folks would be after her. You see I was young myself then, and so I just sent them cattle for all they was worth, and when I pulled up at the parson's house they was white with foam. I went inside the house with the couple and saw them hitched together, and just as we was a coming out up comes the girl's father and brother, but it was too late. I know I had a warm enemy in that household for years after."

Hanson A. Risley, Robert F. Weitbrec, David C. Dodge, Ernest P. Stephenson and Lyman K. Bass are the incorporators of the Pueblo and St. Louis Railroad company, which filed articles at the secretary of state's office Monday. The capital stock of the company is put at $3,000,000, divided in 30,000 shares of $100 each. The company is to exist fifty years and the incorporators are made the directors for one year. The principal office will be located at Colorado Springs.

The heavy snow storms on the range have played sad havoc with the regularity of western mails. King and Swift who drive the coaches from Lake City were out forty-eight hours and finally returned to Lake on foot leaving their stock at Powder Horn. The mail will have to be transported on snow shoes across the range. The average humanity has but little idea of the hardships attendant upon carrying the mails across mountain ranges in the winter season.—San Juan Prospector.

Incorporated.

In the office of the secretary of state yesterday were filed the articles of incorporation of the United States Mining and Prospecting company, capital stock $5,000,000, divided into 500,000 shares of $10 each. The principal office is at Leadville, with branch offices at Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, Chicago, New York and a number of eastern cities.

The Alliance Smelting company has organized with a capital of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each. The operations of the company are to be carried on in Summit county, with the principal office at Carbonateville.

The Plunketts.

Court House Hall was well filled last night by those who had come to witness the dramatic efforts of the Plunkett combination in a play of the day called "Fate." The play is not a bad one and the actors are fair with the exception of one or two who bore the undoubted brand of amateurs. The leading lady of the troupe is Miss Carrie Plunkett who personated last evening the heroine of the play, Florence Grantley, in a strong emotional manner. Blanche Plunkett, as the strong-minded female, Miss Princeton, presented the eccentric character in a quite amusing style, while Clara Plunkett, as the comic maid of all work, Sallie Annie Waddles was especially good. Miss Ginevera Canavan presented the unfeeling and designing character of Blanche Gordon in a manner that secured the approval of the audience.

The leading gentleman, Mr. J. E. Overton, secured much applause as Harry Grantley, the hero of the drama, while Mr. Charles Theodore, as the comic dead beat, M. T. Muggs, kept his hearers in a good humor by his really meritorious presentation of the part. The remainder of the cast was fairly good and the entertainment appeared to give general satisfaction. The manager announced for this evening the play of "Euchre."

Personal.

The Hon. Matt France has returned to the city.

Mr. R. F. Weitbrec went south on yesterday's train.

Mr. Hayne will have charge of the Y. M. C. A. rooms during the absence of Mrs. G. S. Cleavlend.

Mrs. G. S. Cleavland started for Chicago yesterday. She will visit her friends in that city and return in four or five weeks.

Mrs. J. M. Ellison left the city yesterday for Alamosa, where she expects to make her future residence. Mr. Ellison is employed by the D. & R. G. at that point.

TAKING POSSESSION OF THE PROPERTY.

The Cowell Block Turned Over to the Colorado Springs Company by the Process of Law.

Our readers will remember the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Cowell vs. the Colorado Springs Co., the full text of which appeared in the GAZETTE shortly after its promulgation by the court. This decision virtually settled the long struggle over the liquor clause in the deeds of the Colorado Springs Co., the validity of which was disputed by Cowell, who had broken its requirements by selling liquor on his premises and had therefore forfeited his property to the Colorado Springs Co., if the clause in question should be decided binding. Although the question was virtually decided, as we have said, by the action of the supreme court, yet there has been required a number of actions subsequent to the decision to place the forfeited property in the hands of its original owners to whom it had reverted.

The details of the litigation between the Colorado Springs company and Cowell were given in an interview with Major Henry McAllister, which appeared in the GAZETTE immediately after the news of the decision of the supreme court was received here. It will therefore not be necessary for us to more than briefly recapitulate what was then said. The issue was joined over six years ago when Messrs. Davidson and Harrison brought suit of ejectment for the Colorado Springs company against D. A. Cowell, under the clause in the deed to which reference has been made. The suit was begun in the district court sitting here, Judge Hallett presiding. The jury stood eleven against to one for the defendant, Cowell, and were at last discharged. The case was then removed to Pueblo county on a change of venue, and a verdict given for the company. Under the statute, the defendant, by paying all costs, was entitled to a new trial at any time within a year. Cowell availed himself of this privilege and at the following term in Pueblo the case again came up, was decided in the same way, and promptly appealed to the supreme court of Colorado. A change in the personnel of the supreme court delayed the case until three years ago when Judge Beatee gave the opinion of the court, to which an appeal to the United States supreme court was taken by Cowell with the result already indicated.

After the decision of the United States supreme court was received the Colorado Springs company notified those who were tenants in the buildings known as the Cowell property that rents should be paid to the company rather than to any other alleged owners. The mandate of the United States supreme court was handed down to the supreme court of Colorado affirming its judgment and ordering the execution of the decision of the district court. Mr. William Harrison, counsel for the Colorado Springs company, appeared in the supreme court of this state in Denver last Friday and the court issued its mandate to the third district court at Pueblo, Judge Henry presiding, instructing the clerk of that court to issue a writ of possession. Mr. Harrison appeared before Judge Henry last Monday and found that Judge Miller, of counsel for defendant, Cowell, had filed a petition asking that seven appraisers be appointed to set the value of improvements upon the property, which it was alleged that Cowell had made. Judge Henry decided that he could not pass upon the petition except in term time, and instructed the clerk of his court to issue the writ as directed by the supreme court. Mr. Harrison returned to this city yesterday morning with the writ in his possession. He at once informed the tenants that the property was now formally in the possession of the Colorado Springs company. All of those occupying rooms in the buildings under discussion at once took out new leases from the Colorado Springs company, with the exception of Mr. William H. Converse, who had moved his gun shop last Saturday into the office formerly occupied by the late Lieutenant Barrett. Mr. Converse said that he had rented the room of the alleged owner and he did not care to rent it over again of the Colorado Springs company. He was shown the writ of possession, but declined to move. Mr. Harrison placed the writ in the hands of deputy sheriff Dana, who had no other option than to execute it. The property belonging to Mr. Converse was removed under his protest, and the Colorado Springs company was placed in possession. Mr. Converse has rented the room on Huerfano street, next to the stone blacksmith shop, where he will carry on his business. The Colorado Springs company in the removal of Mr. Converse had no feeling in the matter other than to protect its rights under the writ of possession issued by the court, and the step was a necessary one, since Mr. Converse refused to recognise the company as the legal owner of the property.

The writ of possession granted by the court under which the property was taken yesterday, is as follows:

STATE OF COLORADO, }
County of Pueblo. } ss.

The People of the State of Colorado to the Sheriff of El Paso County, greeting:

WHEREAS, The Colorado Springs company, plaintiff, has lately, in the district court of the third judicial district of Colorado, in and for the county of Pueblo, by the judgment of said court, recovered against David A. Cowell and John McDowell, one certain tract, piece, parcel or lot of ground, to-wit: All that part of lot No. one, in block number ninety-two, in the town of Colorado Springs, in the county of El Paso, and state of Colorado, commencing at a point at the corner of Pike's Peak avenue and Tejon street, running thence south along the east side of Tejon street one hundred and five feet, thence east twenty five feet, thence north one hundred and five feet, and thence west twenty-five feet to the place of beginning; which said premises have been and still are unjustly withheld from the said Colorado Springs company by the said David A. Cowell and John McDowell, whereof they are convicted as appears to us of record, and its said judgment against the said David A. Cowell and John McDowell according to the force, form and effect of its said recovery.

Wherefore we command you that without delay you deliver to the said the Colorado Springs company, possession of the premises so recovered with the appurtenances, and that you certify hereon to our court in ninety days from the date hereof, in what manner you shall have executed this writ.

Witness, Theo. A. Sloane, Clerk of said court in and for said county, and the seal thereof, at Pueblo, this second day of February, A. D. 1880.

THEO. A. SLOANE,
Clerk.

Valuable Mines Bonded.

Messrs. J. F. Boss and the Hon. T. C. Parrish, of Custer county, have just succeeded in bonding from Dudley F. McGlothlen, of Golden, the greater part of his valuable Rock Creek Mining property.

The property bonded consists of twelve claims, all of them valuable silver bearing veins, showing as high as 85 ounces from mill runs. When it is taken into consideration that none of the properties in this lot are over 10 feet in depth their value can be more readily appreciated.

Mr. McGlothlen the discoverer of this valuable property is one of the oldest prospectors in the Rocky Mountains and one of the first if not the very first white man to cross the divide between the waters of the Gunnison and the Grand River.

Of these claims, the Home Stake is probably the most valuable. Its pay streak is from eighteen inches to two feet in width and carries a large percentage of copper and lead in addition to a very good amount of silver.

The claims are all below timber line, in a well wooded and watered country and can be without any difficulty worked the year round.

In addition to the properties disposed of by this bond, Mr. McGlothlen retains and will continue to develop a large number of veins in the vicinity. It is well that this is so, as he is universally respected and esteemed in the district, and is the acknowleged arbitrator in disputed mining matters. All the prospectors and claim owners of last season were very desirous of making him a sort of local justice of the peace, whose decision would be abided by in the constantly occurring misunderstandings about rights.

The Compromise.

Dispatches received from New York at the railroad office yesterday confirm the dispatch published yesterday morning in regard to the compromise between the Denver & Rio Grande company and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe company. The dispatch was substantially correct. The papers were signed on Monday night. The Denver & Rio Grande has agreed not to build its line south of a point 75 miles south of Conejos. It will be free to build on all its other lines. The Atchison Co. has sold the Denver & Rio Grande about 70 miles of steel rails and all the material on the Leadville branch. This will enable the Denver & Rio Grande to more rapidly complete the line. General Palmer telegraphed here to make arrangements to be in Leadville in two months. The compromise gives Leadville and southwestern Colorado to the Denver & Rio Grande exclusively. As this has been the bone of contention in the whole fight the Rio Grande has won a substantial victory.

Not C. H. Wood.

The following advertisement appeared in the GAZETTE yesterday: "Wanted A partner with $1,500 capital, to invest in a business paying eighty-five per cent. Best corner in city secured. Business: manufacturing confectionery and ice cream. Address W. & Co., postoffice.

Mr. C. H. Wood, who has rented the rooms now occupied by Mr. F. E. Robinson's drug store, for the purpose of putting in a large stock of confectionery, desires us to say that the advertisement was not inserted by him. It was not handed to the GAZETTE by Mr. Wood nor does he desire to be considered as the author of the advertisement. The fact that it appears to refer to him and that several of his friends had spoken to him about it, prompted him to ask us to make the above explanation. As we think the coincidence is one as would do injury to Mr. Wood if it were allowed to go unexplained, we gladly give him the benefit of the above.

A very large number of of persons were disappointed in not being able to procure a copy of the GAZETTE of yesterday. Those who desire can obtain the same reading in the Weekly of next Saturday. It will be as well to apply early as the demand is great.
